

ABSTRACT

A method of presenting involves including common presentation functionality in a presentation engine residing on the user's computer and all presentation-specific functionality in a presentation instructions datafile that is delivered to the user's computer and run by the presentation engine. The instructions datafile and the presentation engine may be adapted so that that the presentation engine can easily input the instructions datafile, run the presentation-specific instructions, and display the resulting presentation.